

Liability/Earning Power Assessments

HOOVER

Hoover's credentialed vocational experts (VEs) perform vocational evaluations and earning power assessments in workers' compensation, disability, personal injury, medical malpractice, social security, employment law, divorce, death and other legal cases.

In such cases, a comprehensive vocational evaluation is routinely required to establish earning power. A Hoover VE will meet with the individual to determine his or her transferable skills and occupational outlook. Combined with an analysis of the individual's labor market, the VE will compile an earning capacity assessment that will stand up to scrutiny. The VE will be available to support the findings of the assessment in any required legal forum.

Earning Power Assessments are tools that insurance companies and attorneys use to establish the credibility, or lack thereof, of earnings loss claims in cases involving liability.

Hoover's VEs specialize in the preparation of Earning Power/Liability Assessments.
